Information on Libraries

The libraries in Hertfordshire are run by Herts County Council. Joining the library is free and everyone in your household can have their own membership including children. You usually need to bring in two forms of ID, one with your address.

You can use the computers at the Library to access the internet for free. You are usually logged on for an hour but may be able to use the computer for longer if you speak to the library assistant.

You can print and photo copy documents at the library for 20p.

The Library often hosts events for children and will also have notices of other local events.
